McDonald's Helps In Drive

Local McDonald's restaurants are already well on their way to topping last year's donation of $7,883 to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The funds are being raised through the donation of total net proceeds from sales of McDonaldland Cookies registered between August 17 and 25.

Last year's figure was reached during a one week period and with the addition of two extra days to the 1974 drive, McDonald's operators and managers are optimistic about the possibility of turning over $10,000 or more to support Muscular Dystrophy research and patient care.

McDonald's also supports the Muscular Dystrophy Association through the promotion of children's backyard carnivals and by donating hamburgers and refreshments for the celebrities and stage crews working on the local versions of the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

Center Needs Volunteers

The Monterey County Suicide Prevention Center needs additional volunteers for its staff of telephone counselors.

Classes will begin Thursday, September 26 and will meet every Monday and Thursday from that date through October 29. All prospective volunteers will be interviewed in person before the training class commences. The course consists of lectures, study discussion groups, practice call sessions and an evaluation session. All volunteers are asked to devote four hours weekly to phone duty.

For further details, applicants may call 373-0713 or 373-6363.

State EDD Lists Many Job Openings

With a July unemployment rate of 7.8 percent in California, it may be difficult to believe that there are hundreds of "hard-to-fill" jobs.

Yet the State Employment Development Department (EDD) has a regular publication, "California Inventory of Job Openings," which currently lists 192 hard-to-fill jobs.

The inventory is published periodically by the Department, listing job openings from EDD files that have remained unfilled for a considerable amount of time.

In the current edition, there are 50 hard-to-fill openings listed in the professional and managerial classification in California, with salaries ranging from $4800 to $30,000 a year. Occupations in demand are diverse, as are locations and hiring requirements.

Requested, for example, are electrical engineers, dental hygienists, physical therapists, teachers, social workers and escrow officers. There are 53 current California openings in the clerical, skilled, semi-skilled and services category going RETIREES — Reverend and Mrs. Wellington Smith of Hays Chapel CME Church announced his retirement after 50 years of service in the church. In a packed church, Sunday, citizens showed their appreciation to the couple by presenting him with a life membership in the NAACP which was given him by Cecil Bendel, Branch President. Among dignitaries present for occasion were Mayor B.J. Dolan, Councilmen Steve Ross, and Oscar Lawson; a special tribute was presented by Mrs. Verna Sloan, and music was furnished by Ocean View Baptist, First Baptist, and Hays CME Church choirs. Present were Rev. G.E. Ellis, Rev. R. Nance, Rev. T.C. Broach, and Organist Samuel Brown.

Goodwill Industries Facing Shortage Of Donated Items

A state of emergency was declared today by Goodwill Industries. The emergency, caused by a short supply of donated items, will result in a serious cutback of production and employment unless the community answers their urgent call for help. "Record employment and record sales demanding increased production is the reason for this vicious circle," stated Goodwill officials today.

President of Goodwill, Ray Ansell, stated today, "Unless the community answers this urgent call for help with additional donations of all kinds, it will be necessary to curtail operations and lay-off a number of the 155 people now employed at the Goodwill Plant located at 350 E. Central, Santa Cruz." Most urgently needed items are wood and metal furniture, articles of clothing and appliances.

Free truck pick-up of donations can be arranged by phoning the Goodwill Store at 729 Broadway in Seaside, 394-1212.

Articles given to Goodwill Industries provide employment, training and rehabilitation service through such remanufacturing activities as furniture repair, appliance repair, upholstery, mattress remanufacturing and the creative use of discarded items.

The concept of recycling used goods of all types and description has been used by this non-profit agency as a foundation for providing employment services and answering the community needs since its inception in 1927.

The recycling circle starts with a donation of goods or equipment which is remanufactured at the plant and sold in six different retail outlets located in Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Luis Obispo Counties. Goodwill Industries not only recycles materials but most importantly -- people.

Goodwill Industries is a non-profit corporation which has been approved by the Internal Revenue Service for accredited tax deductible purposes. Any gift made to Goodwill Industries may be reported on income tax forms as tax deductible. Individuals making donations may appraise the donations worth at fair market value and use that figure in declaring a charitable donation.

It's possible that an individual might save more in tax deductions than he would by selling the items, through the contribution to Goodwill Industries.

Camacho Blasts Military Spending

In a press release issued recently to the Post News-Sentinel, Julian Camacho, Democratic candidate for Congress, takes on military spending as "the most irresponsible factor in the defense budget".

Commenting on President Gerald Ford's priorities on defense spending and health care, Camacho stated that while he concurs with the President on the need for a strong national defense, there is a "great deal of fat in the defense budget."

"Nothing damages our economy more, and, in the long run, nothing hurts our national security more than excessive military spending," said Camacho.

In his second try to unseat Congressman Burt Talcott, Camacho said, "President Ford urged Democrats and Republicans alike to vote for those candidates who wish to cut the cost of government and bring inflation under control, and to vote against those who have supported inflationary measures." Camacho charged that Talcott has consistently voted for measures which contributed to inflation, citing military spending, subsidy programs and health costs as prime examples.

Commission On Aging Taking Nominations For Advisory Board

The California Commission on Aging is soliciting nominations of persons to serve on a statewide advisory body to make recommendations to the Commission regarding the State plan for Aging.

Assembly Bill No. 2263 (Chapter 1080, Statutes of 1973) requires the new commission to establish a statewide advisory body, representing senior adults. According to the law, the advisory body is to be composed of one senior consumer from each of the planning areas for aging, and those areas having a senior adult population over 100,000 shall receive an additional representative for each 100,000 senior population or portion thereof.

The statewide advisory body will meet at least quarterly to review the State Plan for Programs on Aging under Title III and Title VII of the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended, which is annually prepared by the California Office on Aging, a department within the Health and Welfare Agency of the state.

In soliciting nominations of persons to serve on the advisory body, "Mike" Piastro, commission chairman, noted that the group is seeking representatives from the major public and private agencies and organizations in the state who are experienced in or have demonstrated particular interest in the special needs of the elderly.

"Criteria for membership on the statewide advisory body has been established by an ad hoc committee composed of commission members under the leadership of Ruth Green," said Piastro. "The advisory body will have a membership of approximately thirty-six (36) persons and shall include senior consumers, low income and minority persons 60 years of age or older. The Commission on Aging will review applications and make the final selection of members to serve on the advisory body."

Letters requesting nominations of persons to serve on the advisory body have been sent to the 11 designated area agencies on aging in California, to county and city governments and to other recognized governmental, public or private agencies and organizations working in the field of aging according to Piastro. Nominations are to be returned to the Commission on Aging on an application form which accompanied the letter of announcement. The application provides opportunity for the nominating agency to offer a profile of potential members which includes their interest and expertise in the field of aging.

Members of the advisory body will serve without compensation, but will be reimbursed for actual and necessary travel and other expenses incurred in performance of their official duties. Members must be physically able to perform duties prescribed under the law, including potential considerable travel.

Organizations which may not have received the announcement letter setting forth criteria for membership on the advisory body and the attached application form from the California Commission on Aging may request copies of the material from the commission by writing to Mikel "Mike" Piastro, Jr., Chairman, California Commission on Aging at 926 J Street, Suite 916, Sacramento, California 95814.

CPSC Warns Of Fatal Electric Shock Hazard

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission today warned consumers that some 200,000 household "trouble lights" or "mechanic's lights" sold in the past year pose an imminent danger of serious or fatal electric shock.

Consumers should immediately cease use of the product, taking extreme care not to touch any metal parts when disconnecting the light from the electrical outlet.

The light was manufactured by A.K. Electric Corporation, Brooklyn, New York. It has been distributed by several firms and sold by stores across the country, including Woolco Department Stores, Zayre, Korvettes, Food Fair, and J.J. Newberry.

The trouble light retails for about $1.50.

The potentially dangerous "trouble light" bears no brand name, label, or other distinguishing marks. Its appearance is similar to many other mechanic's lights. Consumers who are uncertain whether they own a potentially hazardous light should immediately discontinue use of the product and check with the store where it was purchased to identify the manufacturer.

The product consists of either a 5, 10, or 20-foot flexible cord with a male plug at one end and a light socket assembly at the opposite end. The light bulb is enclosed by a metal case and hinged wire guard with a hook at the top.

The socket assembly contains an on-off switch together with a double female receptacle subassembly. The insulating cover for the socket assembly serves as a handle for the unit and is made of exceptionally soft, flexible plastic.

If the handle is grasped in a normal manner, the user's hand or finger may, because of the soft, flexible plastic cover, contact the metal of the receptacles, creating a serious potential for electric shock.

This warning is being issued because it is the view of the Commission that the "trouble light" in question is imminently hazardous and presents an imminent and unreasonable risk of death or severe personal injury to the public.

A CPSC spokesman said the Commission has investigated a fatal electric shock in Florida which was believed to have been caused by this model "trouble light."

For further information, consumers should call the CPSC toll-free hot line 800-638-2666. Maryland residents, only, call 800-492-2937.

Judge Prescribes Cure For Drug Settlement

"There are no unmanageable cases, there are only lazy judges," Federal Judge Miles Lord said after settling one of the most seemingly unmanageable class-action suits in legal history.

Several major drug manufacturers had been accused of allegedly overcharging consumers for commonly prescribed tetracycline based antibiotics. The drugs were used more frequently by consumers to treat flu, ear infections, acne, cystic fibrosis as well as other common ailments. Experts have estimated that millions of Americans used the drugs during the 1954-1966 time of the alleged overcharge.

After 43 of the 50 states filing suit had settled, the state attorneys general of California, Hawaii, Kansas, Oregon, Utah, and Washington and the drug companies took the case to the U.S. District Court of Federal Judge Miles Lord.

Because literally tens of millions of people were potential plaintiffs completing the settlement was not a simple task.

Convinced that the public must receive their rightful share of the settlement, Judge Lord appointed David Lebedoff, a Minneapolis attorney with a wealth of experience with Anti-trust law, as special administrator for the settlement, and authorized his hiring of marketing and communication specialists to create a program to inform the public.

The Court's research experts determined the format for the claims form. No documented proof of purchase will be required on total purchases less than $150 because of the number of years since purchases were made. The research discovered that the form would have to be easy to read, simple to complete, and self-explanatory. After three revisions, the forms are being distributed in mass mailings to all citizens of the six states.

As the claim forms were being created, an advertising agency created a public service advertisements and commercials to inform the public. The program was labeled "Operation Money Back." Time and space for the campaign will be donated by the publishing and broadcast media.

"You have to come back at the companies with the same technique and technology they used to get there in the first place," Judge Lord said.

The success of Operation Money Back may help determine the future of similar settlements involving class action suits.

O.J. In New Film

O.J. Simpson, the greatest running back in pro football history, is trading in his Buffalo Bills' gridiron helmet for a fire helmet to play an important role in Irwin Allen's production of "The Towering Inferno," dramatic story of the world's tallest skyscraper that catches fire on the eve of its dedication.

The announcement was made by Richard Shepherd, Warner Bros. executive vice-president for production, and Jere Henshaw, 20th Century-Fox vice-president - world-wide production, on behalf of the studios bringing "The Towering Inferno" to the screen as a joint venture.

Simpson will portray the head of building security battling the blaze alongside Steve McQueen, who plays the fire chief. Paul Newman also shares top honors in the all-star cast now being assembled for the multimillion-dollar production that begins filming May 1.

The only pro back ever to gain more than 2000 yards in a single season, Simpson now spends his off-season time in show business as an actor in movies and TV, a sportscaster on ABC's Wide World of Sports, and in public relations for several nationally advertised products.

O.J. is currently finishing a role with Richard Burton and Lee Marvin in "The Klansman," and Irwin Allen will adjust the filming schedule on "The Towering Inferno" so Juice, as he's best known, can report to Buffalo on time to prepare for the 1974-75 gridiron season.

John Guillermin directs "The Towering Inferno" with Irwin Allen personally directing the action sequences. Stirling Silliphant wrote the screenplay from two novels.

Cracking Down

If you are driving a car with a faulty muffler there is a good chance that you will become an active participant in a noise measurement survey the California Highway Patrol is now conducting on state highways and county roads.

Drivers whose cars, buses, trucks or motorcycles generate noises above legal levels are being stopped and issued citations which require court appearances or written warnings which require necessary repairs be made.

All the CHP's noise teams have been assigned to the project and are operating at predetermined locations that range from the Oregon state line to the Mexican border. Each unit is equipped with a directional microphone that homes in on each passing vehicle and measures the sounds it emits.

The CHP's noise teams have been on the road since 1967 but according to commissioner Walter Pudinski the current effort is the Patrol's first attempt to identify the statewide scope of California's highway noise problems. The survey is also directed toward identifying geographic areas where abnormal numbers of offending vehicles can be found and specific types of vehicles which are consistent offenders.

All the data obtained will be compared with facts established during a 1973 survey of 24,000 vehicles concentrated in the vicinity of Sacramento. In that survey motorcycles were the worst offenders with one out of 12 exceeding legal limits.

PUBLISH ONE TIME ON JULY 31, 1974

July 31, Aug. 7, 14 & 21, 1974

TO-WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
Any individual, firm or agency who plans to build or place a structure in, on, under, or over the navigable waters of the United States must first obtain a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Such permits are also required for any dredging, filling, or dredge disposal in navigable waters. Regulations governing the administrative procedures on permits for activities in navigable or ocean waters were published in the Federal Register on April 3, 1974 as 33 CFR 209.120.

Navigable waters are any waters which are, have been, or can be used for commercial or navigation purposes. Federal permit authority extends over the entire surface of such a water body. Thus, any work in areas presently or formerly subject to tidal action (below the plane of mean higher high water, including unfilled areas behind dikes) or below the ordinary high water mark of rivers and streams and streams may require a Corps permit.

The Federal Corps of Engineers permit is required in addition to any State or local permits. Private ownership of land under or beside the water has no effect on the requirement. If work is done in navigable waters as described above without a permit from the Corps, civil or criminal actions (including removal) can be instituted pursuant to 33 U.S.C. Code Secs. 406, 407, and 1319. Any questions regarding permits for work in navigable waters may be directed to the Regulatory Functions Branch, San Francisco District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco 94102, telephone: (415) 556-5178 or 556-5489.

The Navy's Advanced Electronics.

It's a good deal...
if you can deal with it.

It's an electronic Navy. And the men who qualify will be trained to become the brains behind the operation and maintenance of the Navy's electronic equipment.

First of all, you must be a high school graduate, heavy in math and science. And, of course, while training, you have to maintain high Navy standards and be willing to do your share of the housekeeping chores.

If you can deal with it, here's what you get in return: you'll be a Third Class Petty Officer with the practical experience for a great career in the Navy, or as a civilian later on.

The opportunity is for real...
and so are we. NAVY

International Piano Forum At Monterey Jazz Festival

The opening show of the 17th Annual Monterey Jazz Festival - Friday, September 20 - will feature major pianists from several countries, according to festival general manager Jimmy Lyons.

Billed as "The International Piano Forum", performers for this portion of the September 20 concert are John Lewis, Eubie Blake, George Shearing, Martial Solal and Dillwyn Jones. Other artists for this and other shows in the five concert series will be announced soon.

John Lewis, a perennial favorite at the annual festival, was for 21 years the musical director of the famed Modern Jazz Quartet.

Raised in Albuquerque, New Mexico, Lewis first gained prominence as a performer and artist with Dizzy Gillespie in 1946. He founded the MJQ in 1952. Both the quartet, newly disbanded, and Lewis have gained international fame, appearing in most of the countries around the world. Lewis has been musical director for the festival many times during its 17 years and will once again be serving in that capacity this year.

At 91, Eubie Blake has become recognized as the dean of the ragtime piano. He began his career at 17, playing in a Baltimore bordello. When jazz preempted ragtime, Blake and his singing partner, Noble Sisse, went into vaudeville. The pair pioneered the entry of blacks on Broadway with their 1923 "Shuffle Along". From that came the well known "I'm Just Wild About Harry". As a composer, Blake has written over 300 compositions.

London born George Shearing was discovered by jazz critic Leonard Feather, who set up his first recording date in 1937 and later arranged for his immigration to the United States.

Shearing's musical education consisted of four years study at the London Lodge School for the Blind. At 21 he was considered a success in England, playing in many of the top supper clubs and appearing frequently on BBC. Shearing dominated the British jazz polls between 1941 and 1948.

After moving to New York City in 1947, he formed a quintet for the now historic 1949 record date which included "September in the Rain", a record which made him an overnight sensation. His "Lullabye of Birdland", written in tribute to the New York jazz lounge where he once worked, has become one of the most recorded melodies of all time.

Pianist-composer Martial Solal was born in Algiers where he began studying piano at age 7. Since settling in France in the 1940's, he has written more than 20 background scores for motion pictures and played at jazz festivals in San Remo, Antibes, Berlin, Frankfurt, Newport and finally this year is scheduled for an appearance at Monterey.

Dillwyn Jones, originally an Englishman, converted his citizenship to American following his immigration to New York in 1961.

Prior to the move from London he was active for many years in post-World War II jazz circles. He formed and recorded with his own trio; did extensive radio work as pianist and leader; hosted the BBC jazz club for many years; and was the first to introduce jazz over BBC television.

The 17th Annual Monterey Jazz Festival is scheduled for the weekend of September 20 and 21. As in previous years the five concert festival will be held in the 7000-seat arena on the Monterey County Fairgrounds. Ticket prices are $7.50, $6.00 and $5.00 for the Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening concerts, and $4.00 and $5.00 for the Saturday and Sunday afternoon concerts.

Previously announced artists include those appearing at the Saturday "Afternoon of the Blues" show

THE $55,000,000 PHONE CALL AND HOW TO PUT A STOP TO IT.

It takes $55,000,000 a year to pay the Operator expense on calls to Directory Assistance...for numbers that are already listed in the local directory.

Who pays this cost?

In an immediate sense, the phone company does. But as a public utility, our operating costs ultimately affect the rates that you are charged. In the long run it's you, the customer, who pays.

So, if you care about the cost of your service, do something about it.

The most important thing is to keep the book near your phone. And use it, whenever you can.

Make a list of the numbers you use most often, or that you may need in a hurry. If you're not sure about how to look up certain types of numbers, here are a few suggestions:

Use the INDEX.

The Index at the front of the book tells you where to find things.

For EMERGENCY NUMBERS:

You'll find them on the inside of the front cover.

For GOVERNMENT LISTINGS:

Yellow Pages—See GOVERNMENT OFFICES.

White Pages—as follows: State offices—See California state of City offices—See (name of city) City of County offices—See (name of county) County of

Federal offices—See United States Government

For LETTERS USED AS NAMES:

Find the beginning of the listings of that letter. Example: R. L. Institute—See beginning of the R's. It will be listed alphabetically.

For NUMBERS USED AS NAMES:

Find the number as it is spelled. Example: 299 Corner Cafe—See Two Nine Nine Corner Cafe.

IF YOU CARE ABOUT COST, USE THE BOOK.
